

“Would you prefer...” game

Players take turns answering questions about which answer they would choose if they had to choose from the 2 provided.

Print out the questions. Cut apart into separate strips. Fold up the individual questions. Place in a jar or container. Players choose one question from the jar and read it out loud. They have to say which one of the two options on their paper they would rather do. Then the rest of the party group can answer the same question.

We have included some blank cards for you to write your own “Would you rather...” cards.
